(Ze'resh)

- The wife of Haman. Zeresh and Haman's friends proposed that he erect a stake to a height of 50 cubits, 22 meters. (73 feet) on which to hang Mordecai.
- However, Haman kept control of himself and came into his house. Then he sent and had his friends and Zeresh his wife brought in. (Esther 5:10)
- At that Zeresh his wife and all his friends said to him; Let them make a stake fifty cubits high. Then in the morning say to the king that they should hang Mordecai on it. Then go in with the king to the banquet joyful. So the thing seemed good before Haman, and he proceeded to have the stake made. (Esther 5:14)
- But when reversals set in, Zeresh, along with Haman's wise men, said; If it is from the seed of the Jews that Mordecai is before whom you have started to fall, you will not prevail against him, but you will without fail fall before him.
- And Haman went on to relate to Zeresh his wife and to all his friends everything that had befallen him. At that his wise men and Zeresh his wife said to him; If it is from the seed of the Jews that Mordecai is before whom you have started to fall, you will not prevail against him, but you will without fail fall before him.
